OSTEND, June 28.

The Austrians have been unfortunately beaten at Aillon; they lost about fifteen hundred men their baggage and magazines. Letters from Paris mention, that the rebel army had been defeated by General Biron, with the loss of 7,000 men, all their baggage and artillery. I do not vouch for the truth of this report, but I know that it comes from Paris. If Valenciennes be decently defended, it may hold out a month longer. As yet the besiegers have not opened any battery nearer than three hundred yards; but they talk of beginning another parallel. — A third—Some People report, that the King of Prussia's army on the Rhine is so reduced, that were it not for the Austrians who are with them, they would be obliged to abandon the neighbourhood of Mayence.

LONDON, June 18.

On Saturday morning General Dumourier arrived in town from Flanders, and soon after had a long conference with Mr. Rose, in Palace Yard, Westminster.

June 20. The Ex-general Dumourier yesterday failed in the Packet from Dover, which carried over the foreign mail to Ostend. During his short stay here, he had notice of several conferences: one gentleman painted the Guillotine on a letter, and left it at Dumourier's lodgings, with his address enclosed, and others declared they would spit in his face wherever they met him.

M. Dumourier, during his short stay here, went to the bank, and transferred a small part of the very large sum of money standing in his name in our funds.

July 2. VALENCIENNES.—By the last accounts received in London, the town was totally destroyed by the combined forces, about 150 cannon having been incessantly fired upon it, for two days and nights.

His Majesty's ship Egmont has retaken a Spanish galloon, one of the richest ever taken, and captured the French frigate, who took the galloon several days before.

July 4. A most unlucky event has happened to the Austrian family, as may be learnt by the following article:

Treves, June 16.

Yesterday morning about four o'clock, a detachment of four hundred Frenchmen marched against the Austrian posts at Faha, Sintz, and Keipling. In this latter place at the distance of half a league from Faha, they took his Imperial Majesty the Arch-duke Joseph of Austria, with a piquet consisting of five dragons, prisoners of war.

The article adds, that every effort was made to recover the Arch-duke, but in vain. The French knew the value of their chief prisoner, and huddled with him to the fort of Saar Louis.

Count de Bylandt has been tried by a Court-Martial, and sentenced to the fortress of Loevestein, a state prisoner for life, for his half-heartedness of Breida.

GENERAL DUMOURIER.

Translation of a letter from General Dumourier to Lord Greenville.

Saturday, June 15, 1793.

My Lord,

"I charge Monsieur de Lacotte, a merchant of Brussels, to deliver to your Excellency this letter, and two passports from the Arch-duke Charles; the one under the name of Charles Perada, the other under my real name. I found great inconvenience in travelling through Germany without this precaution; and it was by the advice of Messrs de Metternich and de Mercy, together with my friends, that I took an Italian name.

"My intention is not to stay in London, being too well known there to make my situation agreeable. I took a house at a distance from London, where I can remain quiet, and wait the end of the troubles of my unfortunate country. If the greatest Statesmen in Europe, Mr. Pitt and you, my Lord, will agree to this, so necessary for my safety and my repose, I shall remain in the greatest privacy.

"My Lord Auckland will acquaint your Excellency of what the Chevalier de Maulde informed him during the negotiation. My Lord Gower will also give you an account of my conduct towards England, during my Ministry; but it is not for these that I claim the generosity of the English nation.

"Your Lordship will see that it was necessary alone that made me change my name when I came to seek an asylum in England. I respect the Laws. The action I made use of when at Dover was merely local, and I hasten to repair it, by a true declaration of myself.

"If my request can be granted, I will comply with whatever the prudence of the Minister shall require of me.

"I have the honor to be, &c. (Signed) "DUMOURIER."

LORD GREENVILLE'S ANSWER.

Whitehall, June 16, 1793.

"I received, Sir, this morning, the letter you did me the honor to address to me. It is the business of the secretary of state for the home department to take the orders of his Majesty relative to the residence of aliens in this kingdom, and to notify the same officially; but as it is to me that you have addressed yourself on this occasion, I cannot do otherwise than acknowledge the receipt of your letter, and answer the demands which it contains.

"Your stay in England will be subject to too many inconveniences, to make it possible for the government of this country to permit it. I cannot but regret that you had not gained information in this particular before you came to England. If your wish had been made known to me before you undertook the journey, I would have informed you without reserve that it would have been an useless one. It remains now with me to point out to you my opinion, that you must conform without delay, to the decision I have been under the necessity to communicate to you by this letter.

"I have the honor to be, &c. (Signed) "GREENVILLE." M. DUMOURIER.

June 27 The French complain much of treachery in their armies. The men before fighting had only two cartridges delivered them; one filled with bran and a broken ball, the other with gunpowder and a cork bullet.

The following is said to be a statement of facts: The negotiation between Captain Vancouver, of the Discovery, and the Governor of Nooka-Soon, was at one time in a train which gave every hope of prosperous and an amicable issue. The former had exhibited his powers, and laid before the Governor a copy of the convention between their respective nations. A few days more would have brought about the surrender of the place to the British arms. At this critical moment an American vessel arrived, the Captain of which pronounced the copy of the convention to be a forgery. The Governor availed himself of this plea, and the negotiation was abruptly terminated.

July 1. General Washington's late present of 2000l. sterling has been received by la Fayette with the most heart-felt satisfaction. It was accompanied by a letter of a very consolatory nature; and should la Fayette survive his present misfortunes, the most happy asylum is opened for him in America.

July 4. The report of the French troops having evacuated Savoy is not confirmed. On the contrary they are said to have surprised the important post of l'Assiette, and thus established a communication between Kellerman's army and that of Nice.

The fate of Egalite is still uncertain; but he is in the hands of men who detest his party, and who will not be over scrupulous about proofs of his guilt.

Orleans has undergone a long examination at Marlaillies; his answers to which contain complete denials of any counter-revolutionary intentions; but words and deeds always differ in France. The Prince de Conti has delivered in a plain and unequivocal defence to all his accusations, by a statement of his retired and benevolent life.

Thomas Paine is now very narrowly watched by the ulupers of the executive authority in Paris. Since he has been disgraced in the Convention, he planned his departure to America, and had supplied himself with a forged passport.

Since the resolution entered into by the States of Holland, that it would be advisable to consider of means to put an end to the war, a report has been circulated, that it is in agitation to conclude a peace.

The intentions for this purpose which are said to be founded on the desire of the Dutch to put an end to hostilities, have, if we may believe the report, been communicated to Prussia and Austria, inviting them to accede to it, and a plan has been formed by our Quinquages on the preliminaries proposed.

According to this plan a number of frontier towns are to be put into the possession of the allies, as cautionary pledges that the French mean to abandon their system of invasion and violence; and to remain in the hands of the allies, till the Sans-Culottes shall have agreed among themselves upon some form of government that may neither be obnoxious nor troublesome to their neighbours.

Such, pretty nearly, is the plan at present talked of, by the public; but it is easy to see, that, to make a design of this sort at all palatable, much more must be done; an indemnification, at least, may be demanded for the charges of the war. This must be done either in money or territory. The settling of a new form of government is a point which cannot be entirely left to the French; the young King and the rest of the royal family are not to be abandoned entirely to their mercies, and many other circumstances are to be considered.

It is more than probable that the island of Corsica is now under the dominion of Great Britain, the mildest yoke they can look to; for however ardent the love of liberty in these brave islanders, they are not sufficiently strong to maintain, without guarantees, their independence.

July 6. The Dutch mail, which arrived yesterday evening, mentions, that the position of the Austrians is advanced as far as Cambray-Cambresis, a small town within nine miles of Cambray; and that the Dutch troops are now so posted as to cover West Flanders.

The French have made a new irruption into the province of Luxembourg, the effects of which are not exactly known, further than that they have pillaged the rich abbey of Urval.

Yesterday a gentleman, who has resided several months in Paris, arrived in town. He brings news as far down as the 23d of June; the particulars of which are, that the Convention have voted themselves dissolved, and have vested the executive council with their power, conditionally, namely, that they shall continue the war until the meeting of the national delegates, which will not take place before November.

A friendly-treaty has been concluded with the Landgrave of Hesse-Cassel, for 8000 men, to be paid, if wanted, by Great Britain.

Monday night a French spy was taken at the Devices, by a King's messenger, in consequence of an order issued from the Secretary of State's office. He had in possession letters from several of the French National Convention. He is a person of some rank.

The twelve French conspirators condemned to death, suffered their sentence with great firmness. They refused the assistance of the clergy. They were conducted to the scaffold in three open carriages; and spoke to the spectators in a free and friendly manner. The three women in the last carriage seemed to excite very extraordinary compassion. At three o'clock they arrived at the place of execution, and were arranged the whole length of the scaffold, in order that they might not see each others execution. They were guillotined one by one, and they all displayed great firmness and heroism. One of them while his head was fixing in the hook, cried out, "Vive le Roi!"

PORTSMOUTH, June 20.

This morning arrived at St. Helens, his Majesty's frigate la Nymphe of 36 guns, Captain C. Pellew, with the Cleopatra French frigate, of 40 guns, and 320 men, her prize, which she took after a most gallant contest.

The la Nymphe had 25 men killed, and 25 wounded. The Cleopatra had near one hundred killed and wounded. Among the former was the French captain, who fell the first broadside.

The commencement of the action between the Nymphe and Cleopatra, was the most noble and awful that the naval history of the world ever recorded. The French captain ordered his ship to be manned, and coming forward on the gang way, pulled off his hat and called out "Vive la Nation!" when the ship's company gave three cheers. Captain Pellew in like manner, ordered his men from quarters to the thunders, and gave three cheers to "Long live King George the Third!" and his putting on his hat again was the signal for action, one of the most desperate ever fought. The greatest part of the time the two ships were yard-arm and yard-arm, and so close on board, that at last the Nymphe's people on the tops actually went from their own yards to those of the Cleopatra, and cut the people from their quarters.

NEW-YORK, August 23.

The politics of the French fleet here, are so confused, that it is difficult to ascertain any facts respecting it—but the reports of the day are, that l'Espe will sail on a cruise in a few days, and that the Jupiter is to follow her.

A person who says he left Boston on Thursday last and arrived here on Monday, has reported in town, that on the arrival there of two prizes, said to have been taken by a French privateer fitted out of America, Governor Hancock ordered them into custody; the Captain of the Concord, on hearing of this order, moored them under his stern, saying he would proceed to sea with them—and that he was so bidden to do on pain of being fired on from the castle.

It is to be wished that this story may be premature—but as the mail of yesterday brought no Boston papers. We have it not in our power either to contradict or confirm it, unless the following extract, dated on the day the informant left Boston, which is entitled "Hills on the subject, may be considered as a species of contradiction:—

Extract of a letter from Boston, dated August 22.

"Yesterday arrived at this port a Spanish ship of 200 tons, prize to the America, of 74 guns. She is from Havannah, and was bound to Spain—Her cargo consists of 500 boxes of white sugar, indigo, cotton, &c."

PHILADELPHIA, August 31.

By the ship Andrew, captain Makins, arrived here on Thursday from l'Orient, which place she left on the 31 of July, we are informed, that two severe battles had been fought between the army of the Republic, under General Biron, and that of the insurgents, near Nantz, in which the latter were beaten and totally routed, with the loss of 7000 in the first action, and 11,000 in the last.

Captain Makins says, he was with the officers of the Municipality when the courier arrived with the intelligence of the defeat of the Royalists.—The actions happened on or about the 28th of June.

Paris papers are received by the above arrival to the 29th of June. An article under the head of National Convention, states, that information was received of the defeat of the Royalists.

Abstract from two letters, one from the French Consul at Baltimore, and another from a private gentleman, to Citizen Carver of this place, dated the 1st inst.

"The intelligence from France is better and better.—The convention after having finished the constitution, which was approved and accepted by the people, adjourned to the month of November, submitting to the execution of the laws and the management of the war to the direction of the Executive."

Lexington, October 19.

By the ship Ariadne, captain Robertson, arrived at Philadelphia on the 17th of August last, from Liverpool, we have received the following intelligence:

TURIN, June 8.

Last night a courier arrived here from Genoa, with the pleasing tidings of the arrival of the Spanish fleet at Cagliari; immediately after, a Congress was assembled, and a courier dispatched with orders for the fleet, and its operations. The first expedition will be against Nice and Monaco.

In the same night, an estate arrived from General Stradolfo, with intelligence that a division of our army had forced its way into the district of Argensiers, in the valley of Demont and Vinai in France. The son of the Marquis of Palavicini behaved most courageously on this occasion.

June 23. We expect, with impatience, the news of the arrival of the British fleet in the Mediterranean. Mean while we learn from Oneglio, that an English cutter had arrived there, the Captain of which had repaired with great speed to our camp. Since that period the movements of the Piedmontese troops, and of the militia of the Provinces, besides many other preparations, announce that some important event is to take place. General Levis arrived here last Thursday from Asia; but his indisposition having forced him to keep his bed, his departure hence for the army will be delayed for some time.

From the camp near Nice, we received the following dispatches.—On the 8th inst. the enemy, to the amount of 18,000 men, made a general attack upon our posts at Aulion, Brois, Perus and Linieres, where we only had 600 men. The latter of these posts having been abandoned, it occasioned the loss of Malinette. The camp of Perus, which had been evacuated by order of the General, also remained in the power of the enemy. But our troops having occupied the heights of Coggio, Brois, Albarca, mangialio, and Bailla, defended themselves there during seventeen hours, by a most heavy fire, notwithstanding all the brisk attacks of the French.

Intelligence has been received here, that on the 21st ult. the Spanish fleet, consisting of 23 ships of the line and 6 frigates, under the command of Admiral Borgia, entered the Gulf of Palma, having taken one French frigate, and obliged another to run on shore on the island of St. Pietro.

On June 16. Intelligence is received here, that the Dutch forces quartered at Menin, and a part of those at Ipres, had received orders to march, on the 18th inst. at midnight, in two columns with a view to surround a body of French troops in the neighbourhood of Verwick: That the column under the command of the Prince of Waldeck attacked one of the enemy's batteries, and were on the point of carrying it, when the Prince was dangerously wounded in the breast and thigh, and they were thrown into confusion and retreated. This corps, being soon afterwards supported by the arrival of the column from Ipres, under the command of Prince Frederick of Orange, renewed the attack, and took possession of Verwick. The Dutch have left on this occasion between fifty and sixty men killed, among whom are five officers. The loss on the part of the French is supposed to amount to 450 men killed and upwards of one hundred taken prisoners, besides several pieces of cannon.

The Prince of Waldeck died yesterday of his wounds.

June 23. Arrived his Majesty's ship the Andromache, when Commodore T. Jones immediately took the command of the squadron, and a set of signals was established between the Commodore and Sir William Erskine, the commanding Officer on shore, an invasion of the place being every night expected.

The ships under Commodore Jones are, the Andromache, Vertical, Lapwing, Savage sloop, and Trial, with several other cutters and armed ships.

It is reported, and we believe with some truth, that General Custine's head is off before this, he being summoned before the Convention, who accused him of treason to the state.

Bordeaux, June 16. All the sections of this city have declared themselves to be in a state of insurrection, and delegated the exercise of their rights to the constituted authority of Bordeaux. They afterwards formed a body under the title of "the popular commission of the public weal." Citizen Sers, member of the constituent assembly, is placed over the commission.

Paris, June 17. The soldiers of the battalions of Paris, destined to re-enforce the army against the royalists, refused to march from Versailles, where they were quartered, before they were paid. The Commissioners are gone to endeavor to appease them.

The barriers still remain shut. A fresh levy of 25,000 men, for la Vendee, has been decreed.

General Paoli has hoisted the standard of revolt, and has already attacked the French troops at St. Florent.

We are assured by a gentleman lately from Green River, that a few days before he left that place, two Indians fired on a lone man who was on horseback, one of the balls wounded him slightly across the breast, and the other passed thro' the horses neck; the Indians after firing ran up to him, and he dismounted on the opposite side and attempted to escape on foot, but being pursued by the two Indians one of which so closely as to convince him he could not escape, he turned on him firing his piece wounded the Indian thro' the lower part of the belly. This he stopped him that the other came up, upon which the white man attempted again to make his escape, but being so closely pursued by the second, he was obliged to club his gun and striking the Indian therewith stopping him, upon which the Indian retreated and the white man pursued, in turn, and the Indian stumbling fell and lost his knife and tomahawk, which the white man catching up, immediately put him to death. The white man then went in search of the wounded Indian, but when he got in sight, finding him on his feet with his gun in his hand, prudently withdrew to some settlement near, and getting company, returned and found the wounded Indian had shot himself and also stabbed himself with his knife and lay dead.

FELLOW CITIZENS,

YOU have beheld several pieces published in our public papers Reprobating our present Constitution, on the account of some eminent dangerous errors, viz. In June the 8th, in August the 10th, and also in a paper of September last.—And wherefore hath the advocates for the Constitution as yet made no reply? Is it because it is a subject of no great consequence or importance? Or is it because the reasoning contained in those pieces are insignificant and only merits an answer of silent contempt? Or is it because the defects in the Constitution are so clearly stated that even sophistry has nothing to say? Or is it because the defenders of the Constitution are themselves now convinced and consequently ashamed to say any thing against dear bought Liberty? If this is the case, our situation has yet a hopeful prospect, and it may be expected that at least two thirds of the Assembly at their next meeting will immediately call a Convention in order to regain our lost liberty.

A PLAIN REPUBLICAN.

Whereas we have the example of Christian nations in time of war, in setting apart days of humiliation and prayer; therefore the Ekhorn Association of Baptists recommend to their brethren to appoint Wednesday the 23d inst. as a day of fasting and prayer, to implore the Divine blessing upon our army now marching against the savage foe; and for the suppression of vice and immorality.—And we invite our brethren of other denominations to unite with us in said solemnity.

A Large Company will meet at the Crab Orchard on Saturday the 2d of November next, to make an early start through the wilderness the next morning. It is supposed that every person will try and avail for that dangerous road.

October 18.

A large company will start from Harrodsburg to Cumberland on the 2d of November ensuing at 9 o'clock in the morning, in which will be the following Ministers of the Gospel, viz: Robert Elkins, John Rice, Moses Blodgett, and perhaps other preachers, who would be glad of the company of any of their friends.

SACRED TO THE MUSES.

ON GUILT.

WHEN guilt the burden'd soul
O'ercafts,
Within the conscious breast,
The mind its own tribunal rears,
And conscience is its self.

Pierc'd by reflection, soon it bleeds,
And crimson stains the face;
No other witness does it need,
But pleads its own disgrace.
